DE VALERA DECLARES WAR ON BLUE SHIRT

SHOCKING ALPS TRAGEDY

FULL STORY OF SAD AFFAIR

BROTHER ON CHINA STATION

Pont Resina, Aug. 19.
The discovery by a guide of an ice-axe in the snow and a pair of spectacles on the thirteen-thousand-foot Roseg Peak in the Bernina Alps, was the first indication of the terrible tragedy which resulted in the deaths of three Eton house-masters and one assistant master.

The victims are:
Mr. H. E. H. Howson,
Mr. E. V. Slater,
Mr. E. W. Powell,
Mr. C. R. White-Thomson.

The bodies have not yet been recovered, but they can be seen huddled together at the foot of a dangerous precipice. They had evidently fallen several hundred feet.—Reuter.

EXPERT CLIMBERS

The party who were all expert climbers left Samaden without a guide on August 16 on what was intended to be the last expedition before returning to England.

They spent the night at Clervia Hut on the mountain side—and climbed Roseg Peak on Thursday, but apparently missed their way when descending and slipped over a glacier.

A rescue party was sent out immediately the guide reported the discovery of the bodies, but it will be impossible to reach the spot before Saturday.

VERY POPULAR

All four victims were very popular at Eton.

Mr. Powell was a well-known oarsman. He rowed in the Cambridge boat from 1906 to 1908 and won the Diamond Sculls at Henley in 1912.

Mr. White-Thomson was the science master, a son of the Bishop of Ely.

Mr. Howson is a grandson of Dr. Butler, the Master of Trinity. His brother commands a destroyer on the China Station.—Reuter.

Mr. Howson's brother is Commander J. M. Howson, officer commanding H.M.S. Witch.

Berlin, Aug. 16.

ETON SHOCKED BY ALPS TRAGEDY

Four Masters Believed to Have Been Killed

London, Aug. 18.
A profound shock has been caused by news reaching Eton College, stating that four of the masters at Eton are believed to have been killed in a climbing accident in Switzerland.—Reuter.

ABERDEEN MURDER

OLD MAN KILLED WITH AN AXE

ROBBERY AS THE MOTIVE?

When a market employee entered a shed in the Cosmopolitan Dock at Aberdeen early this morning, he made the shocking discovery of the body of an old man lying in a pool of blood. Beside the corpse was a blood-stained carpenter's axe.

Police summoned from the local Station taking charge of the latest murder case, were informed that the deceased's name was Lau Fook-lee, aged 66, connected with a fish stall at the Aberdeen Market.

The old man combined his business of a fish-monger with the profession of a carpenter, and the shed, which was nothing more than a lean-to against the east wall of the Dock, was used by him as a workshop and sometimes as sleeping quarters.

Two wounds which had severed the throat revealed the manner in which he met death. His belt had been severed with another blow from the axe. There may have been a leather pouch containing money, attached to it, but that is missing.

Suspicion has fallen on his foks, who are in turn being questioned by the Police investigators.

DISCRIMINATION NOT TO BE PRACTISED

Result of Conference in Berlin

London, Aug. 18.
A conference took place to-day at the Reich Ministry of Economics between German officials and representatives of foreign shipping companies in Germany in reference to the recent order under the German Foreign Exchange control regulations, which had led the companies to fear that discrimination would be practised in favour of the German passenger steamship lines.

The conference was of an harmonious character and the representatives of the British shipping lines expressed satisfaction with the arrangement which has been devised to meet the criticisms.

Berlin press reports state that the effect of this arrangement will be to remove the restrictions on the foreign shipping companies' activities. An official announcement by the Ministry of Economics is to be made later.—British Wireless.

It is notified that unless before the expiration of two months the Chinese Merchants' Land Investment and Construction Company, Limited, obtains a certificate to commence business the Company will be struck off the register.

A ladies' bridge and whist drive will be held at the Police Recreation Ground on Monday.

NO PARADE TO BE HELD

AT PERIL OF PROSCRIPTION

FIRM ACTION

Dublin, Aug. 18.
The Minister of Justice has issued a statement to the effect that if any unformed or armed parades of General O'Duffy's Blue Shirt organisation are held on Sunday, the organisation will be proclaimed an illegal association.

The Blue Shirt organisation would then be subject to the provisions of the Military Tribunal Act, whereby any member could be summarily arrested and tried before the secret military court.

Under the Public Safety Act invoked, the Government has the power of life and death and offenders may be summarily executed.

O'DUFFY'S PLANS

It will be recalled that last week, when the Blue Shirt parade was banned, General O'Duffy declared that, on a solemn occasion, such as the commemoration of the deaths of three of Ireland's greatest men, "I shall not risk the danger of disorder owing to the Government's action."

"Instead," added General O'Duffy, "I am arranging for ceremonies to take place in every county of the Irish Free State on August 20, when we shall commemorate the death of—Mr. Arthur Griffith, Mr. Michael Collins and Mr. K. C. O'Higgins."

Mr. Griffith was the first President of the Irish Free State, and, on his death, he was succeeded by Mr. Collins.

Mr. K. C. O'Higgins was the Irish statesman who was shot dead on his way to Mass on July 10, 1927, at Booterstown.

CONSPIRACIES OPPOSED

Mr. William Cosgrave, leader of the opposition in the Dail, has flatly contradicted the rumour that, by some secret alliance between General O'Duffy and himself, an attempt may be made to seize the Government. He adds: "We oppose all coups d'etat and conspiracies, whatever their origin, and we invite the Government to do the same."

Secret negotiations are said to be taking place which may lead to a fusion of Mr. Cosgrave's party and the Blue Shirts, although General O'Duffy has declared his dislike of the present parliamentary system in the Irish Free State.

General O'Duffy's National Guard has now officially adopted the Fascist salute.

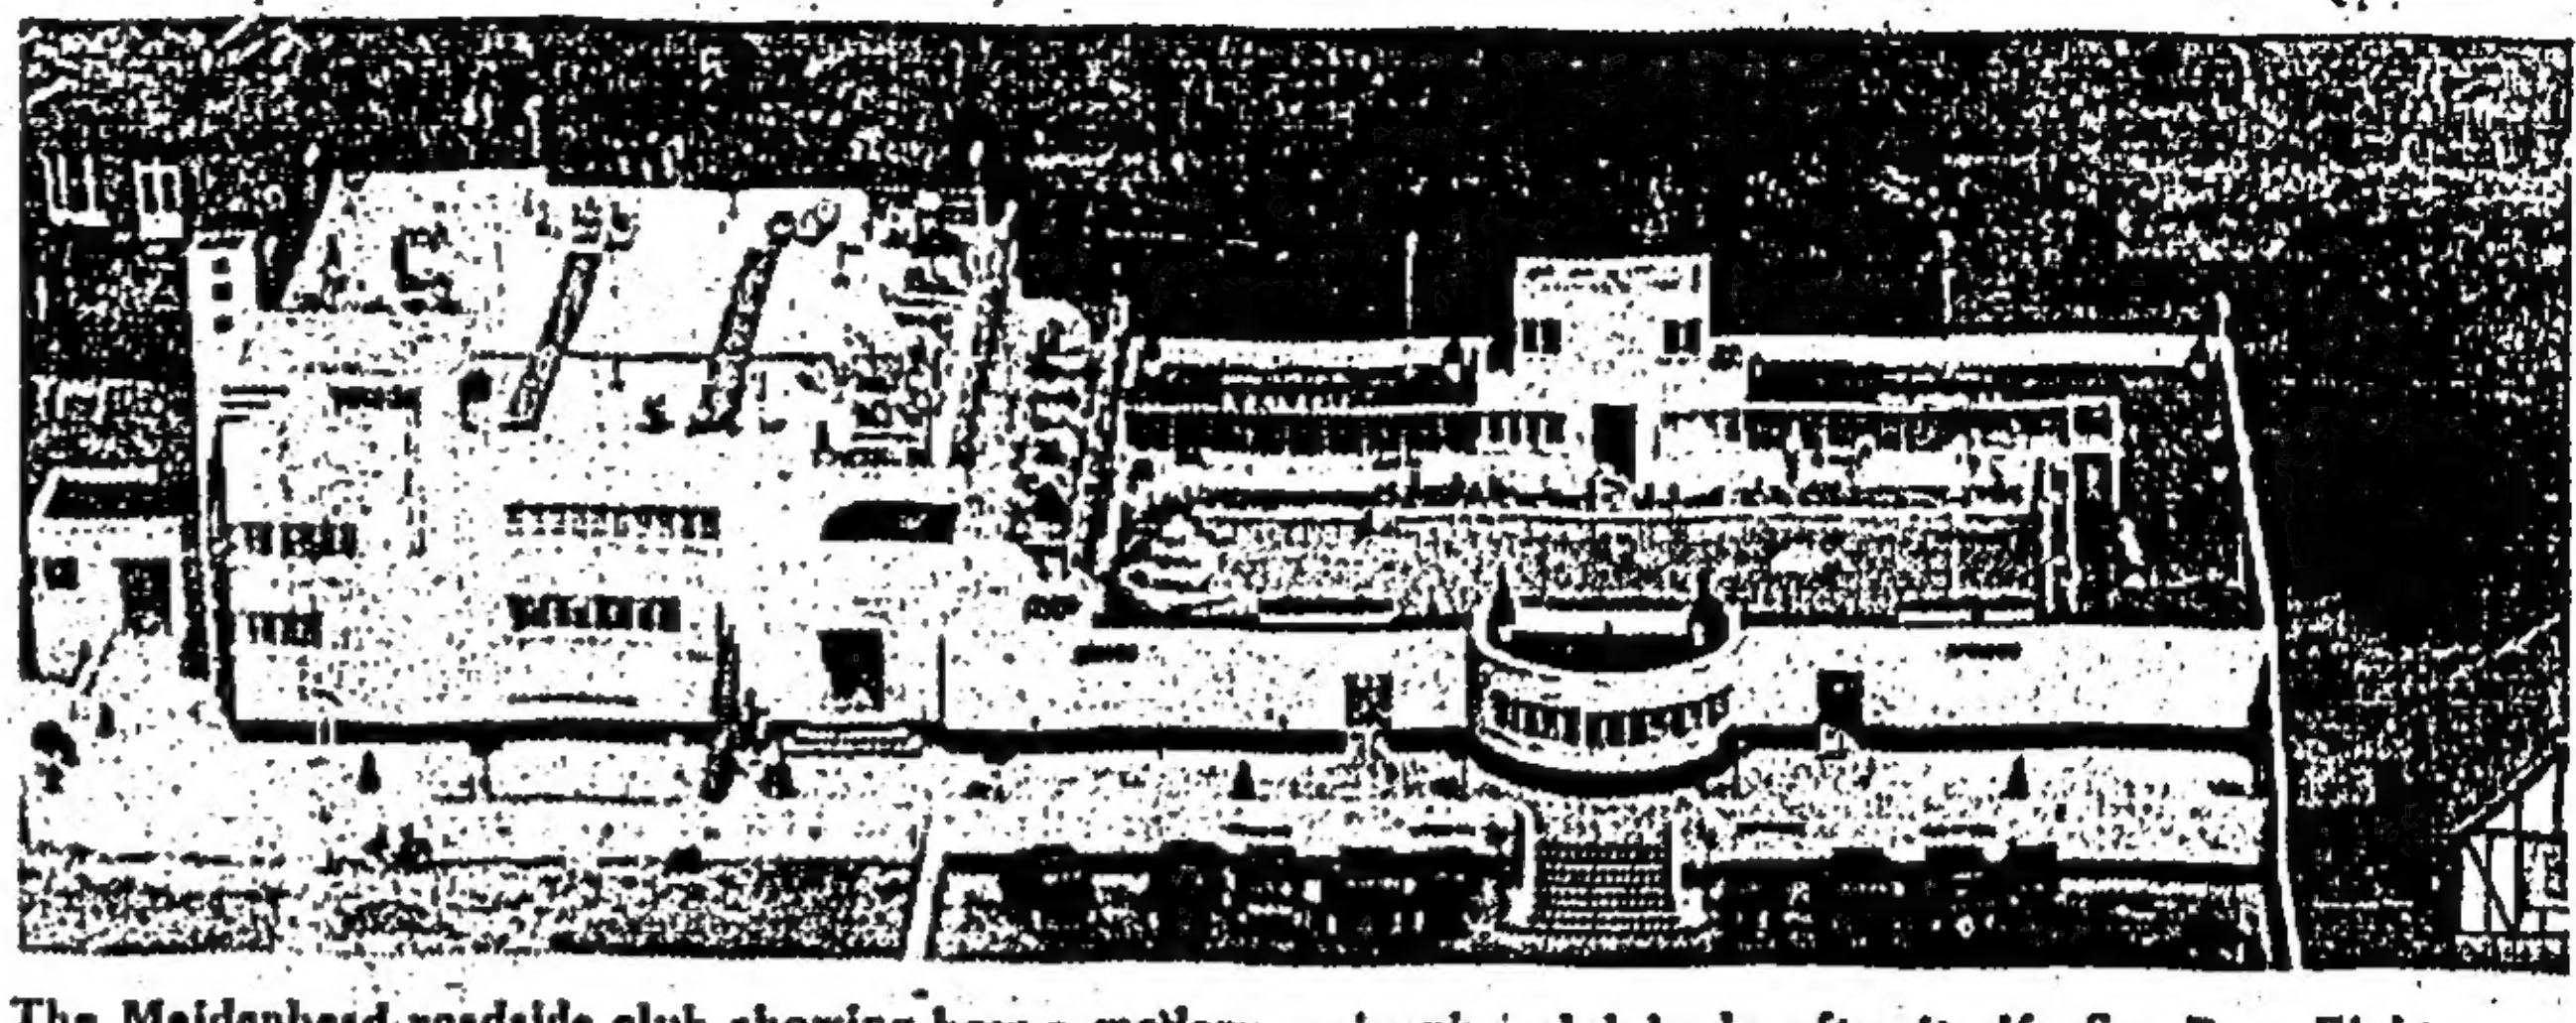

General O'Duffy's response to Mr. de Valera's virtual declaration of war is awaited with interest.—Reuter.

UNIFICATION OF ISLANDS

UNHAPPY POSITION OF TRINIDAD

The report of the Commission consisting of General Sir Charles Ferguson (Chairman), Sir Charles Orr and Mr. MacNeill Campbell, of the Colonial Office, which has been dealing with the question of a closer union of the Leeward Islands, Windward Islands, Trinidad and Tobago, recommends that the islands forming the Colonies of the Leeward and Windward Islands should be united into one colony under a Governor with headquarters at Saint Lucia.

The report states that whatever advantages may have accrued from the amalgamation of Tobago with Trinidad, the former has always been a financial burden to Trinidad since the amalgamation, and Trinidad is strongly adverse to any further union on more extensive lines.

SIR MILES LAMPSON'S NEW POST

HIGH COMMISSIONER IN EGYPT

SUCCESSOR NOT YET APPOINTED

TWO NAMES MENTIONED

London, Aug. 18.
Sir Miles Lampson, the British Minister in China, has been appointed High Commissioner in Egypt in succession to Sir Percy Loraine.

The successor in China of Sir Miles Lampson has not yet been decided. The matter is still under consideration, though rumour has had it that Sir Cecil Clementi would be appointed.

Reuter is informed that Sir Miles Lampson will not be able to leave China before November, although he expects to take up his post in Cairo before the end of the year.

NO CHANGE OF POLICY

It is further learned in official circles that the fact that a diplomatist has been appointed to Cairo does not indicate a change of policy. It is desired to continue the good relations maintained by Sir Percy Loraine.

The appointment is definite promotion for Sir Miles Lampson, being equivalent to an Ambassadorship. He will enter into a sphere entirely new to him, his previous experience as a diplomatist having been centred in the Far East and Central Europe.

Born on August 24, 1880, he is still a young man and his appointment as Minister to China was his first as a diplomatist of the first rank.

In the four previous years, 1922 to September, 1926, he was Counsellor at the Foreign Office as chief of the Central European Department and he made a great reputation for himself, thanks to his vigour, tact and grasp of essentials.

His work at the Locarno Conference had much to do with its success.—Reuter.

ANOTHER NAME

The name of the Hon. Alexander Montagu George Cadogan C.B., C.M.G. is also being mentioned in well-informed circles as a possible successor to Sir Miles Lampson as Minister to China in December.

Confirmation of these reports could not be obtained from the Foreign Office, where inquiries were made. It was gathered that the appointments have not yet been settled, and it is probable that Mr. Cadogan's has as yet gone no further than the consultation stage.

Mr. Cadogan is a brother of the present Earl Cadogan. He was born in 1884, and educated at Eton and Oxford. He was nominated an attaché in the diplomatic service in 1908 and married Lady Theodosia Acheson, a daughter of the Earl of Gosford, in 1912. Very early in his service he was sent to Constantinople, where he was promoted to be Third Secretary of the Embassy in 1916. Two years later he was transferred to the Foreign Office, and in 1918 joined the Embassy in Vienna.

LOWEST DEPTHS OF INFAMY

FIRE CONSPIRACY SUMMING-UP

ALL ACCUSED GUILTY

London, Aug. 19.
The lowest depths of infamy were reached when Capson's wretched wife was set to do the actual burning," commented Mr. Justice Humphreys during his concluding remarks in a thirteen-hour summing-up in the fire conspiracy trial.

Mr. Justice Humphreys was referring to evidence during the trial at the fire at a silk company's premises in Oxford Street started by Mrs. Capson.

The jury retired at noon to consider their verdict, dealing with at least 141 counts against the various defendants.

Loophole-Harris, the fire-assessor, who was charged on thirty-two counts and who pleaded guilty to twenty-five, was alleged to be the prime mover in the conspiracy. The Judge instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the other seven.

Banff, Aug. 18.
Mr. Inazo Nitobe, the chairman of the Japanese group at the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations, denied the statement credited to him that Japan and Russia were preparing for war.

He said: "I talk of peace not of war."

Other Japanese delegates emphasised that Japan had no intention of preparing for war, declaring that Japan's policy was definitely one of peace.—Reuter.

MISS ROUND IN SEMI-FINAL

RAIN CHECKS PLAY AT FOREST HILLS

KEEN CONTESTS

Forest Hills, Aug. 18.
Miss Dorothy Round, the world's foremost challenger to the supremacy of Mrs. Helen Wills-Moody to-day entered the semi-final of the American national ladies' singles tennis championship when she beat Miss Sarah Palfrey in straight sets by the scores of 6-4, 9-7.

Miss Helen Jacobs, America's ranking No. 1 player joined her by defeating Miss Josephine Cruikshank after a two set match which entailed 30 games. The scores in Miss Jacob's favour read 11-9, 6-4.

RAIN STOPS PLAY

After these two matches had been played, rain fell and prevented any further play.

With Miss Round safely through it means that England has a chance of seeing two of her players in the semi-finals.

Both Miss Betty Nuthall and Miss Mary Healey are quarter-final survivors, and one of them should make her way to the semi-final stage.

MISS ROUND THROUGH

Miss Round to-day repeated her Wightman Cup performance when she beat Miss Palfrey.

In the international cup match she won in straight sets, 6-4, 10-8 and to-day she was just as severely extended.

She was, however, too steady for the American girl, and in the end her wider repertoire of strokes clinched the issue.

Miss Jacobs by no means enjoyed an easy passage, against Miss Cruikshank and experience, more than anything else, won the day.—Reuter.

SURFBOARD BAN

NEW REGULATIONS FOR REPULSE BAY

MUST KEEP BEYOND RAFTS

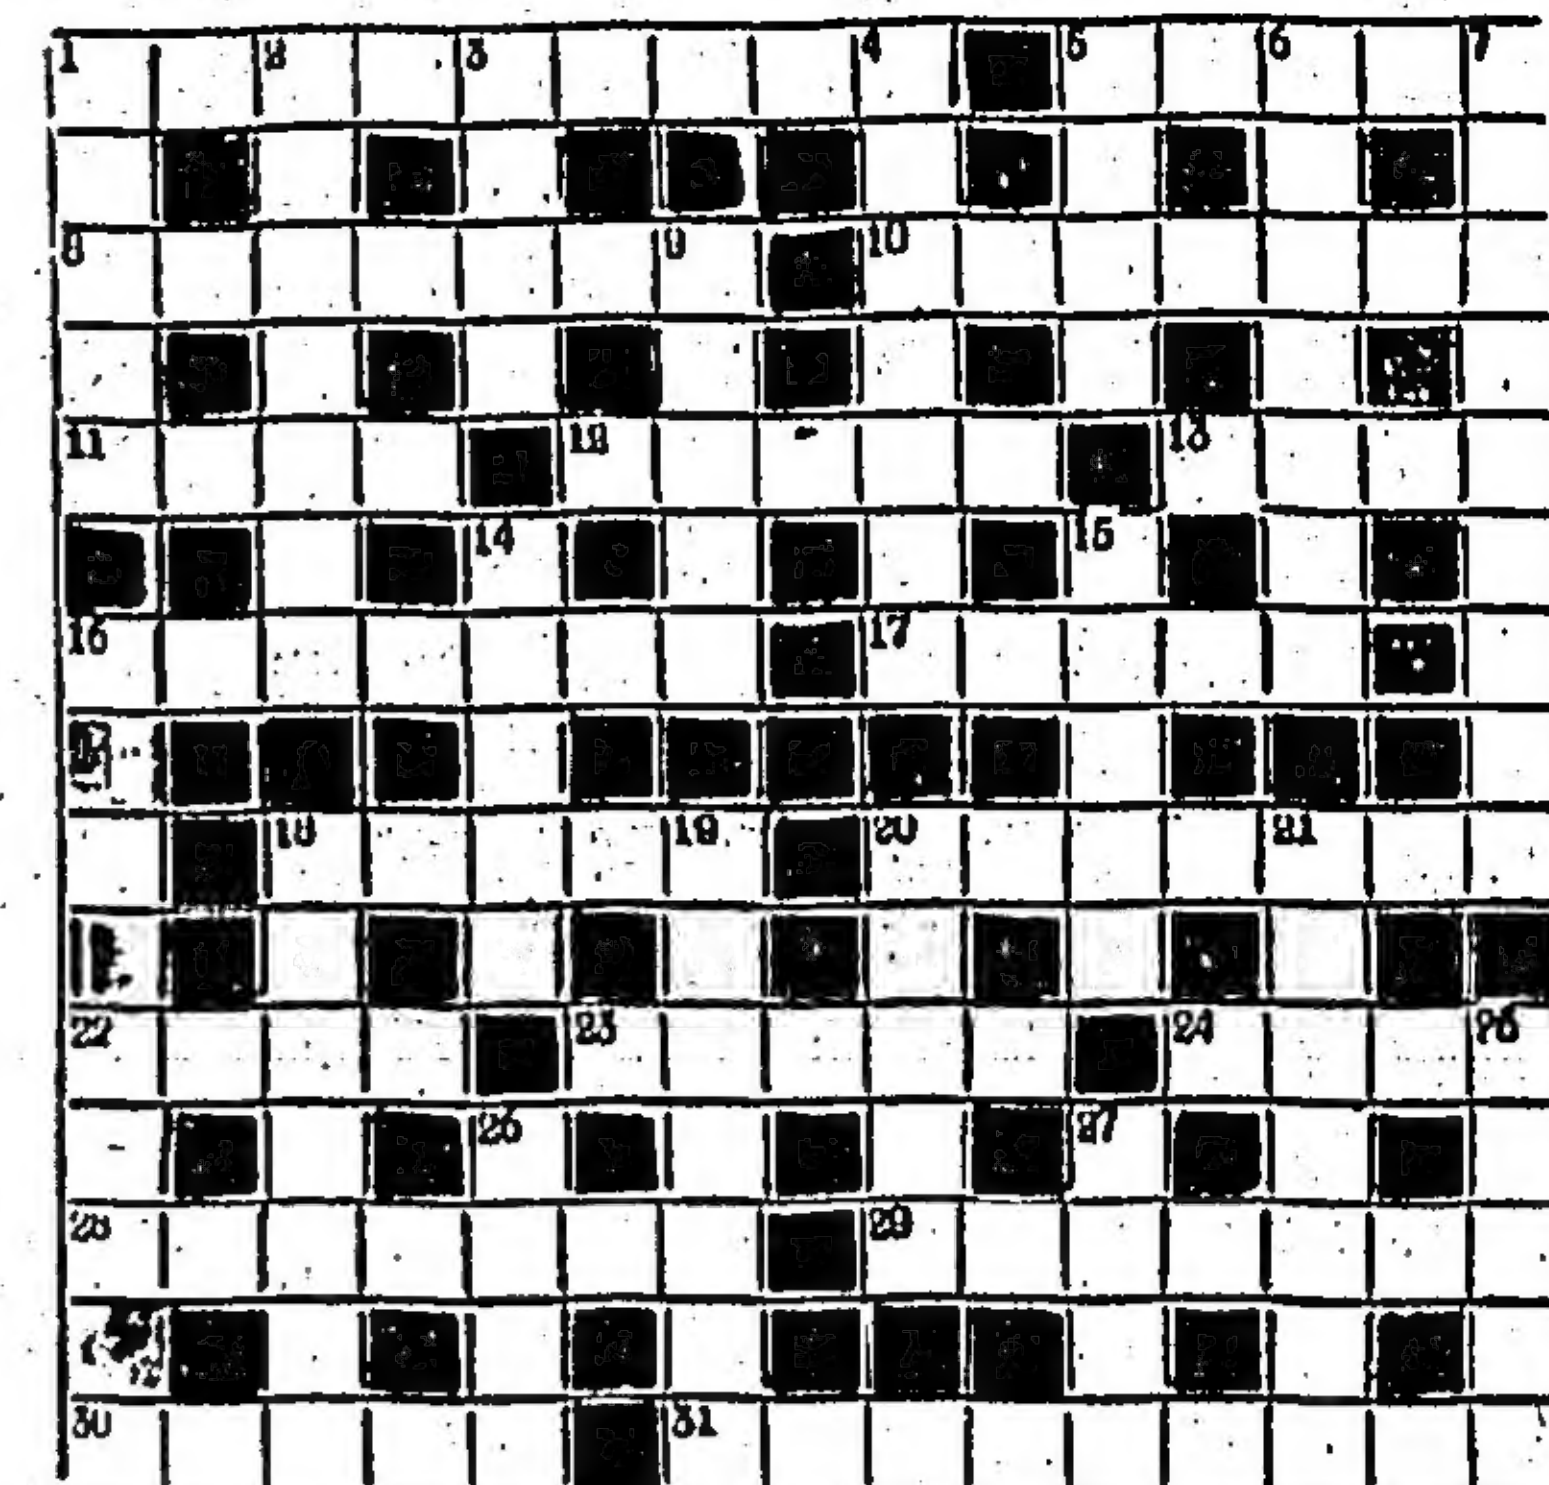

The development at Repulse Bay of the sport of surf-riding has led to the issue of a regulation by H. E. the Governor.

The regulation provides that except with the permission in writing of the Inspector General of Police no person shall use any surf-board at or off Repulse Bay beach between and including the foreshore and a line, running parallel to the shore, drawn through the three rafts moored off the beach. The taking out of any surf-board from the shore to and beyond such line, and the bringing in of any surf-board from or beyond such line to the shore, shall be done with the greatest caution.

The effect is to prevent surf-riding as a casual sport.

After a casual surf-riding party was seen at the beach on Monday.

There has been a growing agitation throughout the country by the secessionists who are demanding the independence of the island.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

Suits With Fantasy and Formality

GAY SUMMER TAILLEURS RETAIN PRACTICAL NOTE

BY JEAN PATOU

Written for NEA Service.

Paris.—It is doubtless because of its subtle charm that women are so fond of the little summer suit. I admit that it always can be counted upon to contribute a note of novelty to a woman's wardrobe, and can therefore never tire by its monotony.

Its only resemblance to the strictly tailored, sober and even austere suit of years ago is in its composition, that is, the combining of a skirt and jacket, although, of course, the modern suit is often composed of a dress which can well be worn alone as well as a jacket.

The fact that the summer suit offers a great deal of fantasy does not by any means debar it from being distinguished. This fantasy prevents it from being too sad and sober, and this is the note I always endeavour to avoid in my summer collections.

There is, as a matter of fact, a definite scale of elegance in these summer tailors. Some can be given an informal note—others are sufficiently formal to be worn at smart functions. At the races, for example, they are not at all out of place and are often singled out for their air of restrained elegance and chic.

The practical note, always the main feature of the old tailleur, is still present and even accentuated in its modern edition. Take for example a suit composed of a navy blue or black satin dress over which is placed a jacket of some brightly-hued linen. The dress itself belongs to the semi-formal afternoon category. Worn with the jacket, it constitutes a perfectly appropriate and practical town suit.

It is certainly a long cry from the classical suit in the case of such models where the blouse and jacket are combined in one garment, being neither one nor the other.

The fancy fabrics used for the summer suit help to lend it a note intermediary between the dress and the suit. This particular note is one which I have always striven to achieve in every suit of this category, departing as much as possible from the rigidity of the classical tailored suit lines and still introducing a moderate amount of fantasy.

Evidently, if colour combinations are restricted to black and white effects, there can never be a mistake to record. I personally prefer less obvious and somewhat banal combinations, and recently I endeavoured to achieve some unexpected contrasts, which fortunately have been quite successful with my clients.

hour will really rest your nerves and bring you back to your own peppy self.

Before you lie down, take a hot tub. No matter how hot the day, this soapy hot tub or shower will get the grit off you and out of your soul. If you cleanse your face and apply the nourishing cream before you lie down, that's all to the good.

If you are very tired, dip your fingers into cold water and massage your scalp a little. Loosen it up from the back of your head. Then across the top and sides. Keep dipping your fingers into cold water and applying it direct Patter around your room barefoot, while preparing for your nap and while getting dressed. Put your slippers on the last thing. This extra five minutes barefoot relaxes you more than you realize.

Don't forget to spray a little cologne under your arms. And to rub your hands together with some of it. These tiny little things taken together go to make up the routine that really rests you, braces your spirits and puts you in a party mood.

RASPUTIN AND THE EMPRESS

Adapted by BIANCO E. JONES from the M.G.M. Picture.

In yesterday's chapter the Tsarina, disillusioned at last in Rasputin, called up
Prince Paul to break the impostor's power.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

It was not difficult to find Paul. Natasha's message brought him swiftly to her at the hospital where she and the Empress served as nurse during the day in order to do their share of war work. Natasha greeted him with outstretched hands.

"It is the Empress who wants to see you," were her first words.

He guessed for what reason he had been called.

"Rasputin?" he questioned.

"Yes."

Paul looked at her for a moment and his lips compressed into two white lines. Pressing her hand, he hastened to the room where the Empress was sitting at a desk.

"Paul!" she exclaimed gladly as he entered. "I was never so glad to see anyone. I need you!"

"This is the proudest moment of my life," Paul replied earnestly.

"What are we to do?" the Empress asked, shaking her head.

"I know what to do," was the grim answer.

In the long drawing room of Prince Chegodieff's town house a wild scene was taking place, several days later. Samarov, a minor official who owed his post to Rasputin's kindness, had been bribed by Prince Paul to bring Rasputin to the house under the pretext that a friend of his was having a party.

In the kitchen, Prince Paul, looked down at Dr. Remezov as the physician bent down over the table, in order to bring his eyes on a level with a little chocolate cake that stood with several others on the plate. He took the top layer from the top of the cake, sprinkled a powder on the surface of the filling, and then replaced the top layer.

"There's enough cyanide in that cake to kill a squad of men. I've never seen it to fail. A single drop of cyanide on your tongue would kill you like that," the doctor snapped his fingers to illustrate.

From upstairs in the living room came a shout of laughter followed by guitar music and a chorus singing a gypsy song.

"A fine party—an excellent party," Rasputin shouted to Samarov.

Then he caught the waiter's incredulous, unbelieving eyes upon him.

"This is Chegodieff's house!" he shouted. "Samarov—you Judas—you've betrayed me."

"Search the house! Search the house!" Rasputin shouted.

Suspicious as he was of everything and everyone in Prince Paul's house, the thought of poison never entered Rasputin's mind. Quietly down a little, he took another cake from the terrified waiter's tray and began munching upon it. He was half through, eating with loud sounds of relishment when his guards came back from the kitchen, with Prince Paul and Dr. Remezov as their prisoner.

Paul, who had caught sight of him biting into the cake as they came through the doorway, smiled maliciously and bowed.

"So," Rasputin bellowed at him, "you plotted to murder me! You should know better by now. Nothing can kill me."

One of the paid guards who had found Paul and Dr. Remezov came forward. In his hand he held a heavy service revolver. He handed it to Rasputin.

"We found this on the younger prisoner," he said.

Rasputin took it into his hand, looked at it and then looked drunk-ly up at Paul.

"Next time," he taunted, using the very words Paul had used in Rasputin's kitchen months before, "next time I'll aim at your head."

Saying this he tried to aim. But several of his friends leaped at him, tore his arm down. One of these men got up on tip-toes and whispered into Rasputin's ear.

Why don't you take him down into the cellar or some place where people can't see you. Then we can say he was killed by one of his servants."

The idea amused Rasputin.

"Prince," he said in mock courtesy, "they tell me that your cellars are famous—rare wines—and huge pantries—won't you show them to me?"

"Certainly," Paul said, and led the way to the cellars.

Rasputin seated himself on the sofa. In his right hand he held the pistol, in his left hand was a half-eaten cake. Paul looked at it. It was one of the chocolate cakes that had been heavily poisoned.

"How does it feel to die?" Rasputin asked, threatening Paul with a revolver.

"How does it feel to die? Paul said. "You'll know. You've been poisoned. Already you're dying. Look at your face—it's turning green."

"You swine," Rasputin shouted and brought up the revolver, aiming straight for Paul's face.

With a shout, Paul leaped forward, cleared the sofa top and landed full onto the revolver. It was discharged in the monk's hand. The bullet flew wide. Paul wrested the revolver away from Rasputin and hurled it into the fire. Then with a powerful thrust he sent Rasputin staggering back.

Jumping up from his prostrate enemy, Paul seized a wrought iron poker from the fireplace. Then, standing over the monk, legs wide-apart to give his blows force and leverage, he battered at the monk's head.

Finally a crash overhead told him that Rasputin's friends had broken down the door. There was a French window at ground level that opened out onto the river. As he fumbled with the latch, he heard a faint sound behind him. He turned, Rasputin, his face flowing blood, the white ends of crashed bone standing out from the red mass of his skull, had gotten to his feet.

With a wordless yell of rage, Paul lunged himself upon the man, seized him by the coat collar and dragged him through the window. Then, flinging Rasputin into the snow, he locked the cellar window to bar pursuit for a few moments.

Turning again, he picked up the starlets and half-carried, half-dragged him to the river's edge.

The river was full of ice. Huge blocks of it grated and crashed against the bank.

Paul waited until two blocks came floating toward the shore. Then he dragged Rasputin on to the ice and forced him between the two blocks.

In the bedroom of the Tsaritsa, the Imperial family was assembled. The Tsar, on learning of Rasputin's murder, had come back post-haste to the capital.

There was a knock at the door.

"Come in," the Tsar said sadly.

Paul appeared with General Orloff. Aloysha made a movement toward him and was restrained by the Tsaritsa.

"Your Majesty," Paul said, bowing.

Aloysha had never taken his eyes off Paul. He was bursting with suppressed admiration. The Tsar handed the General a document.

"I want you to see that this order is properly executed. There is no justification for murder, Prince," he said.

The Tsar went on severely to Paul.

"My ministers have demanded that you be punished with death. But I cannot take a life that has been so devoted—in the past—"

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Felt, the New York market was steady yesterday. Duals done 2,000,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal report on yesterday's market: "After a firm and active opening, stocks closed dull and lower due to liquidation in grains and late trading. Recommending utilities on weakness. Stocks: Consolidated Gas of New York at 47; Public Service of N.J. at below 40; Pacific Lighting at below 30; American Gas at below 30 and North American Co. at 20. Our New York Office cable (This morning). Stocks: There was a good recovery from a sharp dip which suggests a good underlying demand and which should take prices higher. Wheat: Buyers became timid as to-day's selling increased and the market declined sharply but there is no change in the news which is bullish. Purchases are suggested on reactions. The market will attract new buying. Cotton: Late advance on short covering in a thin market due to a lull in hedging and liquidation. A trading market with tendency to await Washington developments. Spot demand reported slow. Our New York Office cable (Last night). Stocks: Realizing may cause temporary irregularity but indications point to higher prices. Next week, stocks should be bought on a recession. Wheat: Market confidence is increasing. Liverpool and sterling action will affect values here. The general situation favours much higher prices and purchases are suggested on all setbacks. Cotton: Opening demand considerable but met by hedge selling which is probably influenced further by action of grains and sterling but the market must absorb hedging for an indefinite period.

FLASH POINT OF OIL.

CASE BROUGHT AGAINST COMPANIES
UNDER WRONG SECTION.

ALL SUMMONSES DISMISSED.

Ruling that the summonses were brought under the wrong section, Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, dismissed the charges against the managers of four oil companies summoned for breach of the Dangerous Goods Ordinance.

The summonses arose as a result of the storing of petroleum distillate in twelve junks lying off Cheung Sha Wan. Action was taken against the owners after a fire had broken out on one of the junks.

It was revealed during the hearing that the oil was a distillate of petroleum imported from America to be further distilled and converted into kerosene. Its flash point was said to have varied in all the cases from 145 deg. F. to 193 deg. F. It apparently seems to be a new trade, having only started about six months ago.

The prosecution contended that the oil came within the meaning of dangerous goods, although only in two cases did the flash point go below 160 deg. F.

The defence, represented by Mr. M. K. Lo and Mr. C. Y. Kwan, submitted that the section under which the summonses were brought was wrong, in that it did not refer to the storing of oil in lighters, ships or boats.

Mr. Kwan also contended that the oil could not be said to come within the meaning of dangerous goods as its flash point was above 160 deg. F. In only two cases was the flash point found to be below this mark, and Mr. Lo explained it as having been the failure on the part of the agents in America to comply with the conditions of the contract.

The Defendants.

Chan Yip-sang, the manager of the Ho Sang Company, King's Building, Commercial Road, Central, was summoned for storing 70 tons of petroleum distillate without a licence on a cargo junk lying off Cheung Sha Wan, and also for storing 200 tons of petroleum distillate on another cargo junk also off Cheung Sha Wan. Mr. M. W. Lo, of Messrs. Lo and Lo, represented Mr. F. Hing-tak, the general manager of the Associated Petroleum Company, 8A, Des Voeux Road, Central. Eight summonses were preferred against defendant, all in connexion with storing cargo on junks off Cheung Sha Wan. The total amount of petroleum distillate and other inflammable liquids alleged to have been stored on the junk was 1,855 gallons.

Mr. H. S. Chen, manager of the South China Oil Refining and Enterprise Company, 63-65 Des Voeux Road, Central, was summoned in respect of storing 60 tons of petroleum distillate on a junk off Cheung Sha Wan, and Mr. K. S. Lee, manager of the China Supply Corporation, 46 Queen's Road, Central, was summoned in respect of 400 tons of petroleum distillate.

Both defendants were also represented by Mr. M. W. Lo.

Case Outlined.

Outlining the case for the prosecution, Mr. J. C. FitzHenry, Deputy Superintendent of the Fire Brigade, said that the summonses arose in connexion with a fire which occurred on a junk in Cheung Sha Wan on July 22. The junk was then carrying 340 tons of petroleum distillate. The fire occurred as a result of an oxy-acetylene apparatus being overheated. The oil did not ignite. All the junks were carrying dangerous goods.

He observed eleven other junks lying outside the dangerous goods anchorage. The situation was more dangerous, because that part of the bay was inaccessible to fire floats in the event of a fire occurring. And if the fire occurred at night, the danger would arise of the flames drifting to the shipyards on the water-front.

Mr. Schofield.—This seems to be a harbour offence.

Mr. FitzHenry.—The question has been dealt with by the Harbour Master, who has convicted junk masters for having dangerous goods on board.

Continuing, Mr. FitzHenry stated that these defendant companies dealt in so-called fuel oil, which was a crude distillate of petroleum. This distillate was brought to Hongkong from America, and transhipped to Canton and other places to be made into kerosene. The distillate was stored here, until the duty in Canton was satisfactory for the buyers to take the distillate to Canton. The ordinance referred to petroleum and inflammable liquids. Inflammable liquids meant liquids with flash point under 160 deg. F.

Mr. FitzHenry said he obtained the names of the owners from the junk masters. The samples of oil were sent to the Government Analyst, and in two cases the flash points were found to be below 160 deg. F. The remaining flash points varied between 161 deg. F. and 193 deg. F. The sub-manager of the Associated Petroleum Company informed him that the oil was called fuel oil. He informed the sub-manager, that the oil was called "enriched fuel oil," and in reply the sub-manager told him it was called "special fuel oil," which was to be distilled into kerosene.

Hearsay Evidence.

Mr. Schofield held that except for the Associated Petroleum Company, the evidence he had given did not hold against the other defendants, because it was hearsay evidence, as he had not proved definitely the ownership, except for the junk masters' statements.

Mr. Lo (to witness).—The only evidence you hold against the Associated Petroleum Company is this curious conversation you had with the sub-manager.

What was your object in sending the samples to the Government Analyst?

stored there and the quality of the oil.

To cut a long story short, the only object you sent for him was to inform him that you would issue a summons against the company?—Generally, yes.

I put it to you that it was quite wrong for you to question him, if you had intended summoning him, without giving him a warning? It was most likely that I would have prosecuted him.

Mr. Lo, addressing Mr. Schofield, said that he was content to ask certain questions, which would enable him to get a decision on the prosecution's case, but if the ruling was against him, he would ask further questions.

Mr. Schofield ruled that if there was other evidence available, and Mr. FitzHenry had said there was, he would hear it.

Mr. Lo then continued his cross-examination of the witness.

Mr. Lo.—Do you seriously say that this oil is dangerous in the popular sense?—Definitely yes.

Why?—I had experience of this oil before, and I know it is dangerous.

Would you be surprised to hear that Mr. FitzHenry will say that you can use this oil to put out a fire?—I would not believe it.

A Challenge.

Are you prepared to take any sample of this oil into Court and let me light a match to it?—It would not ignite by the application of a flame only.

In other words it would only burn if you used a wick?—No. If some sort of external heat was applied to bring it towards its flash point it would ignite.

Have you investigated as to how this oil was imported into the Colony?—I have an idea.

Do you know whether it is imported as dangerous goods?—No. The owners did not register it as dangerous goods.

Would you be surprised to hear that the insurance companies have charged nothing for the carriage of this oil as dangerous goods?—I would not.

Do you know that by taking what I may term arbitrary proceedings, your action will be resented by the public?—I don't know where it is arbitrary. It is my duty to see and to report that no undue fire risks be accessible to places in the Colony.

All Considered Dangerous. You spoke about tests. Do you make any distinction between any of the cases?—In some cases the quantity of the oil is better, but I regard them all as dangerous goods, irrespective of what their flash points might be.

Do you realise that proceedings of this kind may have the effect of stopping this trade, and do you desire that?—No. It is not part of my duty to stop any trade.

I think you stated that this business has gone on for some months?—Yes.

You don't suggest it has been carried on secretly?—No. May be they did not know it was dangerous goods.

Would it not have been a point of courtesy on your part to have warned them first?—It is not part of my duty.

You are not really pressing the case, are you?—I am not pressing on any penalty, but on the principle.

Mr. Kwan (to witness).—You were satisfied that in most cases the flash point was above 160 deg. F. and in spite of that you took out these summonses?—Yes.

Where was the necessity to take out the summonses?—It was dangerous goods in the meaning of the ordinance.

Mistake Explained.

Mr. Lo submitted that he would have to make a great distinction between the cases in which the flash point was below 160 deg. F. and the cases in which it was above that mark.

The analyst had reported two cases in which the flash point was 145 deg. F. and 160 deg. F. This came about as a result of the failure of the American agents to comply with the terms of the conditions. The business had been going on for some months, and the terms were that the flash point of the oil sent should be above 160 deg. F.

So his clients naturally assumed that every shipment complied with this essential requirement. With every shipment was also sent a certificate from the Deputy Inspector of Petroleum in New York that the flash point was above 160 deg. F.

This was the only case in the past six months in which the flash point had been below the mark. His clients had found out the difference in the flash point only after they had received the certificate, and he therefore asked that the offence be dealt with as a technical one.

Arguing on the point of law, Mr. Lo submitted that the summonses were brought under the wrong section. They should have really been brought under section 7, which dealt with the conveyance of dangerous goods by ships, lighters and boats, whereas the section under which the

NAVAL TRESPASS.

WARSHIPS REPORTED
OFF DAIREN

Dairen, Aug. 18.

A report has just been released here to the effect that two battleships, allegedly of American nationality, and a two-masted foreign warship, cruised inside the coastal waters near here without diplomatic notice.

The story is prominently played up in the local vernacular press. General Ando, commander of the fortress at Port Arthur, declared himself uninterested in the matter and Rear-Admiral Tsuda, commander of the naval depot, laughed off the report, saying that it was probably an unintentional trespass while the ships were practising tactics.—Reuter.

section under which the summonses were brought only applied to oils with a flash point below 160 deg. F., and except for the two cases mentioned, there was no case to answer.

Mr. Kwan said he would wish to associate himself with all Mr. Lo had put forward, and in addition maintained that if the flash point in crude oil or even petroleum was not below 160 deg. F., then it was not within the ordinance.

Mr. Schofield, discharging the defendants, remarked that the summonses were brought under the wrong section. As regards the two junks in which the contents were below 160 deg. F., he thought summonses against them could be brought under section 7.

HUANG FU ON CHARHAR AFFAIRSOFFER MADE TO FENG

Nanking, Aug. 18.

General Huang Fu, Chairman of the Peking Political Council, arrived this morning from Kuling, where he had conferred with General Chiang Kai-shek regarding North China affairs.

Interviewed, General Huang stated that with the departure of General Feng Yu-hsiang from Kalgan, the Charhar affair has been brought one stage nearer solution, but the reorganisation of General Feng's armies still presented a big problem. He intimated that a political offer had been made to General Feng in telegrams recently sent by General Chiang Kai-shek and Mr. Wang Ching-wei.

General Huang Fu added that he was leaving for Shanghai in a day or two.

A Chinese telegram from Tsingtao reports that Mr. Sun Fo is on his way to Tientsin from Tsingtao. It is thought here that Mr. Sun Fo's trip is probably connected with the Government's offer to General Feng Yu-hsiang.—Reuter.

A New Car.

One of the oldest firms in the British motor industry have recently placed a new light six on the market which, judging by the universal praise of the experts, is truly sensational in every respect. It has been common knowledge for the past two years that the Vauxhall engineers were engaged in the production of the new model, but such secrecy was observed, that no inkling whatever of the type or power leaked out. Indeed, the cars finally assembled for experimental work were only taken out at night, and even then, they were fitted with a special radiator which effectually disguised them. The Daily Telegraph states "Here is a car from a famous factory embodying practically every feature of the biggest and most luxurious automobiles.... timed against the watch over a quarter of a mile at Brooklands, a speed of 66.21 m.p.h. was recorded.... and petrol consumption at the rate of 28 m.p.g." The News Chronicle mentions "Viewed from any point, acceleration, braking, hill-climbing, traffic running, and comfort on rough going—it was exceptionally good." The first shipment to Hongkong is due on 3rd, September, and the local representatives, The Hongkong Hotel Garage anticipate an exceptionally heavy demand for demonstrations.

What Girls Should Be Taught*RESIST CLOTHING FADS

Chicago, Illinois.

What girls need to be taught in school is to resist clothing fads. A speaker told a group of teachers of Home Economics, who met in connection with a meeting of the National Education Association, that the way to do it is to teach the girls to apply basic art principles to themselves.

"We want girls to appreciate their own skin tones, and know which values and colours are best for them, so they may choose the most becoming colour, regardless of whether it's the mode of the moment. We must give them a knowledge of the fundamental art principles which are the basis of all beauty," she said.

"Because they love novelty and variety, there is danger they will select fads instead of more lasting styles. Every girl needs to know how to select clothing from the current fashions so as to emphasize the attractive lines of her figure and minimize the unattractive ones."

She warned the teachers, however, that they would have little influence as fashion advisors unless they kept an open mind on new styles.—Reuter.

GALLERY CRASHESACCIDENT DURING SERVICE

Belgrade.

Ten men were seriously injured when the women's gallery in the 40-year-old mosque at Vlasenitz, near Garajev, collapsed during a service.

The men had been sitting immediately below the gallery, which was the only part of the mosque into which women were admitted. The gallery was packed with women worshippers at the time. Amid sudden shrieks and cries, bricks began to fall and then the gallery collapsed. The women, however, all escaped with bruises and shock.—Reuter.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars. The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results. Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around; the mettle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

10,000 MILES FOR FREEDOM

CONVICT'S STRANGE STORY

DEVIL'S ISLAND CAPTIVE

Bordeaux.
A strange battle for freedom, which took him over 10,000 miles, has been related to his final captors by a convict who escaped from Devil's Island.

Victor Garder has arrived under close guard here all the way from French West Africa to be tried for a crime committed in Portugal four years ago.

Daring escapes into the "green hell" of South America and the jungles of French and Portuguese West Africa, five years of banditry, wandering ten thousand miles through three continents were described by the prisoner.

Condemned in France in 1928 to twenty years in French Guiana, for attempted murder, Garder escaped within a few months into the dangerous jungles known as the green hell. After terrible hardships he reached civilisation living a hand to mouth existence in South America, finally working his passage to Portugal. There he carried out a sensational burglary of a smart Lisbon jeweller's shop. He was sentenced to eight years in the Portuguese penal camp at St. Paul of Loanda, in Angola. He escaped into the African jungle four days after his arrival.

Garder was caught again by the French police at Matadi, French West Africa, and promptly found means to escape once more. Cornered finally at Brazzaville, he has now been sent here to stand his trial for the jewel robbery at Lisbon, for which he has already been sentenced. But since a French citizen cannot be extradited from French territory, it appears that this is the only procedure by which he can be dealt with. A Bordeaux jury will therefore hear evidence about the crime committed in Lisbon.—Reuter.

U.S. TAXPAYERS SURCHARGED

SUBSIDISING POLITICAL PARTIES

New York.

American taxpayers are being overcharged $500,000,000 a year to subsidize the two great political parties of U.S.A., declares the National Civil Service Reform League in its annual report.

"The growth of the public service," the report says, "has been out of proportion to the real need. Payrolls are padded to take care of political workers at the expense of the public treasury. The public service is everywhere cluttered with mediocre, incompetent, inexperienced officials and employees."

"The American taxpayers are giving the political organisations a subsidy of $500,000,000 a year to help them maintain their organisation machines through political patronage. . . . This is enough to take care of all the relief resulting from disorganisations of private employment."

Every new organisation created to promote recovery, the League says, has been thrown open to political spoilsmen under the plea of emergency necessity.—Reuter.

PANIC AMONGST SHEEP

HURL THEMSELVES OVER PRECIPICE

Rome.

One hundred and three sheep were killed when a flock of over 1,000 which was grazing on a mountainside near Rieti suddenly took panic and hurled itself over a precipice.

A shepherd, who tried to stop the stampede, was swept over the edge with his flock. Only the fact that he fell on a mass of sheep saved his life. More sheep fell on to him, however, and he was nearly dead from suffocation when he was "extracted" from beneath several layers of animals.

The resemblance of the incident to the stampede of the Gadarene swine in the New Testament, has greatly impressed the countryside.

'FLU' RELAPSE' —STOP IT WITH 'ASPRO'

Why 'ASPRO' Has a Universal Sale

Just why 'ASPRO' has so many diverse uses is puzzling to many. The secret is that 'ASPRO' attacks two of the main causes of complaints—viz., those of Uric Acid and Germ origin. After entering the system 'ASPRO' becomes both a solvent of Uric Acid and a germicide. Of interest to those seeking scientific reasons for the many uses of 'ASPRO' are the following realises:

1—After liberation in the system, 'ASPRO' acts as a definite solvent of Uric Acid.

2—It is a powerful germicide. Liquids containing mould spores and bacteria were treated with 'ASPRO' and kept for 5 to 7 days under conditions which were identical with those under which the same liquids without treatment were kept. Fermentation where sour was present, and moulding and other decompositions took place in the latter, WHILEST THE TREATED SAMPLES OF 'ASPRO' WERE FOUND TO BE UNCHANGED—they were perfectly sterile—the GERMS HAVING BEEN DESTROYED.

3—It is a sufficiently powerful antiseptic to keep liquids containing organic matter from contamination. Sterilised liquids treated with 'ASPRO' remained sterile after 5 days' exposure to the atmosphere in unsealed bottles. There is, therefore, no doubt that 'ASPRO' as ingested is a solvent of Uric Acid, a powerful germicide and a powerful antiseptic.

THERE is still a lot of 'Flu' about and reports to hand indicate that a relapse may involve serious complications. Although the wave is not of epidemic nature, an attack means "laying up" in bed—unemployment and much inconvenience. The quickest way to beat the 'Flu' is to use 'ASPRO.' 'ASPRO' will stop Colds and 'Flu' at inception. Immediately the first symptoms appear take 2 'ASPRO' Tablets and 2 tablets every three hours afterwards until symptoms disappear, a hot lemon drink to be taken immediately after the last dose before going to bed. It is advisable when taking 'ASPRO' for Influenza and Cold to keep the body warmly clad in order to prevent chill. 'ASPRO' won't fail you! It is sure, safe and certain. A child can take it safely. It does not harm the heart or injure the stomach and gives quick results because, after ingestion in the system, it is a solvent of uric acid, a powerful germicide and is anti-periodic, anti-pyretic and anti-fermentative.

How To Take 'Aspro' For Colds & Influenza

'ASPRO', the most universally used medicine in the British Empire, is the quick safe and effective means of combating influenza. Take 2 'ASPRO' Tablets immediately the symptoms appear, and two tablets every three hours afterwards until the 'Flu' has disappeared. A hot Whisky or Lemon Drink to be taken with the last dose before going to bed. It is advisable when taking 'ASPRO' for Influenza and Cold to keep the body warmly clad in order to prevent chill. These instructions are the result of careful chemical research investigations and quick relief is obtained because after ingestion in the system 'ASPRO' is a solvent of Uric Acid—a powerful germicide—an antiseptic—anti-pyretic—anti-periodic and anti-fermentative. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart. Always keep it in the home ready for emergency.

5 MINUTES

FOR RELIEF WITH 'ASPRO'

There is nothing indefinite about 'ASPRO'. Its service is QUICK—safe effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dissipate or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from 'ASPRO', as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, sedates nor drugs.

HOW TO GIVE 'ASPRO' TO CHILDREN

Most children are subject to Tooth-ache, Earache, Colds and sudden bursts of Temperature. 'ASPRO' can be safely given to children so affected. It will soothe the pain away and quickly reduce Temperature.

Two simple methods of giving 'ASPRO' to the kiddies are: (a) with a little milk; or (b) break the tablet up and administer in a teaspoonful of jam. The dosage for Children 5 to 8 years, 1/2 tablet; 8 to 12 years, 1 tablet; 12 to 15 years, 1 1/2 tablets. 'ASPRO' like any other medicine should not be given to babies under 5 years of age without medical advice.

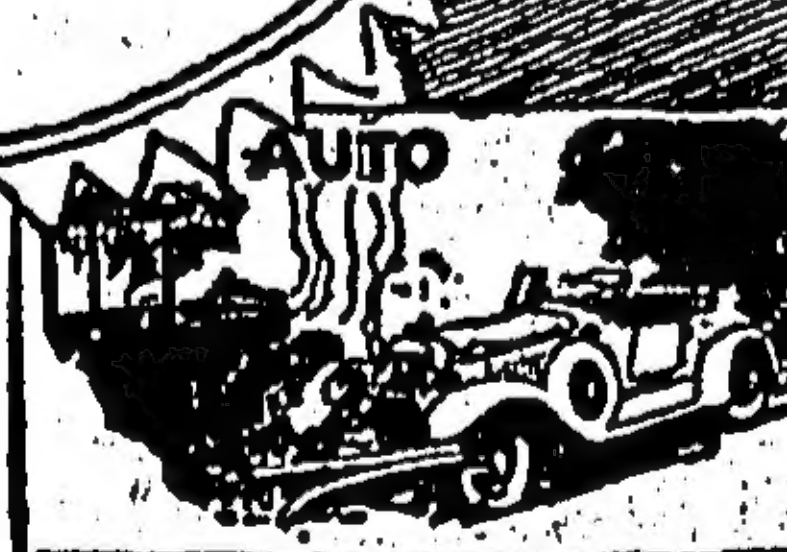

'ASPRO' IS PACKED IN 3 SIZES.

'ASPRO' for Hong Kong is packed in three sizes 5's, 10's and 15's under our exclusive hygienic sanitise system whereby each tablet is hermetically sealed in a separate airtight package to stop contact with atmospheric conditions and prevent hydrolysis. 'ASPRO' thus reaches you in its perfect original condition of purity—and it does not harm the heart.

DISARMAMENT

In a striking article recently published in America, Lord Cecil touches upon a fundamental aspect of the dominant problem of insuring the peace of the world. It is inherent in the argument that people are as keen for peace as ever, but he does not shrink from facing the difficulties presented by the surge of disarmament. His suggestion that, instead of endless argument, a "reasonable" disarmament scheme be submitted to outright vote before the General Commission, has the value of simplicity; his assurance that no major nation would brand itself as a real opponent of disarmament is certainly not beyond probability. Lord Cecil goes deeper when he sees that the lack of confidence, which followed the advent of the Hitler regime in Germany is a major cause of the present impasse. Yet the answer is not in matching suspicion with suspicion. The best way to prevent rearmament of Germany, Lord Cecil indicates, is for the nations, by their example, to make rearmament impossible. For in the consideration of the concessions which other nations would of necessity make to German military equality within the framework of a disarmament convention, a basic fact must be recalled. To the Germany of 1932 the world stood ready to make such concession. German right to "Gleichberechtigung" was recognized, the hand of friendship had gone out to the Reich and the English-speaking nations particularly were at the point of granting to Germany a position virtually equivalent to that which her most nationalistic spokesmen are now demanding. It is curious indeed that the vigorous phraseology which the Hitler regime originally adopted changed the attitude of many nations lest they be "forced to concede" those things which but a few months before they had appeared glad to give. But if success is to crowd the private negotiations which Mr. Arthur Henderson is now busy conducting in various European capitals, problems from definition of aggressive weapons to manufacture of armament must win concessions. Sanctions, as well, remain a problem. Here Lord Cecil outlines a simplification of method. He would have the world erect a prompt and complete blockade against the exports of any nation offending against the disarmament convention. It is a plan which merits examination in more detail than that with which it is presented in Lord Cecil's proposal. The crux of his contention, however, is that the world needs to recognize the disarmament convention as a practical possibility.

NOTES OF THE DAY

Government's reply to the Chinese bathing clubs' petition conforms to expectations. Giving way on the immediate issue, the cancellation of the leases at the end of their present term, Government does not surrender the principle that when the region is needed for industrial development, the clubs will be required to find other sites. They are now practically assured of security for three or four years, but we would strongly recommend them not to ignore the advice contained in the Government's communication. They will not discover public sympathy if they hang on to the last moment and complain when a move is made to turn them out. The sooner they find an alternative site, suitable to themselves and Government, the happier will things be for all concerned.

INLAND FACILITIES

No-one under-estimates the difficulties confronting the organizers of the bathing clubs. Sites which meet all requirements are invariably required for other purposes. Eventually, we would suggest, they will have to abandon the sea altogether, if they desire to offer facilities on the city side of the island, and embark upon fresh-water baths. There is plenty of land which could be developed cheaply on the south side of the tram route between Causeway Bay and Quarry Bay. It will cost a little money but the amount spent on the establishments at North Point does not hint at any insuperable difficulty here. A photograph on another page will give an idea of the possibilities in the suggestion. The Maidenhead club is on a more elaborate scale than is essential, but even a considerable modification would provide more pleasant arrangements than are now afforded at North Point and the cost would not be prohibitive.

KOWLOON LIDO

Meanwhile, Government has agreed to take the steps required to terminate the coal dump nuisance at Chatham Road and, despite the sea-rotting funny-merchant, whose mind would be better exercised with a little constructive thought, Kowloon may also turn its attention to the question of bathing facilities. Government has been wise in one decision; it can be wise in another. The Lido proposal is practical and practicable; efficiently organized it would be bound to pay its way and more. Frankly, we see neither cause for humour nor sign of common-sense in the alternative of allowing the area to lie idle and useless for twenty years.

ROAD LOADS

Mr. Stanley Dodwell's mild protest at the opening of the Brewery regarding vehicle regulations limiting the laden weight of industrial lorries in the New Territories to three and a half tons, might have been ventured much more forcibly. The issue appears to be primarily the concern of the Police Department and it is high time it was further explored. Either the regulations themselves need overhauling or, if it can still be seriously argued that the state of the road to Castle Peak demands the restriction, steps should be taken to see that they are not flagrantly ignored. Anyone who uses the Castle Peak road at all must be aware that the 3½-ton limit is regarded as a poor sort of joke. New Territories farmers, loading up their produce at Un Long, do not cultivate the habit of making two lorry journeys where one is possible, while the buses regularly plying between Kowloon and Un Long are always so crowded that it cannot be exaggerating to suggest that often enough their gross laden weight is as much as five or six tons. The road is still there and pretty good at that.

TYPHOONS WANTED

Water restrictions in September must be unique even for Hongkong, but that is to be the Colony's fate if Mr. Jeffries does not soon bring us relief. It is impossible to question the wisdom of Government's decision. We are faced with an exceedingly grave situation. If the normal September rains fall us, and in such a summer anything is likely to happen, the predicament sure to follow in the Spring is one upon which we prefer not to dwell. The only way out of this situation is to break her of eating grass.

ON UNDERSTANDING JAPAN

By E. L. ALLEN

"The outside world needs to be very patient with Japan in these days. So many influences are playing upon her just now, she is facing so many crises at one and the same time, that no one knows where he is going—except, of course, General Araki. He knows." There you have about as accurate a statement of the position in Japan as could be wished for. When a whole nation becomes perplexed and uncertain, it rallies to the one man who promises it relief, even if it is not sure that he will succeed, it will at any rate give him a chance.

What are some of these problems which Japan is facing? To begin with, there is the population problem. One of the latest and most authoritative accounts of this is by Professor Uyeda of the Tokyo University of Commerce, one of the delegates to the Banff Conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations. He points out that it is not a question of the children who are being born or who will be born in the future. The problem is what to do with the children who were born between ten and fifteen years ago. There was at that time a sudden rise in the birth-rate, which means that in the near future there will be a corresponding increase in the working population, the men and women who have somehow to find places in the economic structure of the country. "The children already born are growing, and upon reaching maturity, must either be employed in agriculture, industry or commerce, or must emigrate. Providing employment annually for 200,000-250,000 persons will be a serious problem during the next twenty years." They must either swell the population of the cities or remain to increase the already serious pressure of the population on the soil.

TRADE PROBLEM.

Then there is the trade problem. At the moment, to be sure, Japan has no occasion for alarm. While other countries report a decrease both in exports and in imports when the first six months of this year are set over against the corresponding period in last year, she is able to show an increase of 50% on exports and 20% on imports! But what of the future? She sees tariffs being built up against her everywhere. Ottawa and the failure of the World Economic Conference seem to her like the rumblings which precede an approaching storm. Her Indian trade is menaced, and the Dutch East Indies, to which she had looked for a compensating market, may be closed at any moment against her. Everywhere governments are hanging out the sign "No admittance to Japanese goods." It is the order of the day to create economic blocs. The United States, the British, French, and Dutch colonial empires have become such. And Japan asks what she is to do except to follow the fashion, to take the corner of the world that is left her and create there a similar empire and a similar economic bloc?

"RED" LEANINGS.

Then there is what is known as the thought-problem. A visit to the book-shops of Tokyo leaves one with the impression that that section of the Japanese educated class which is at home with foreign languages is much more interested at the moment in Russia than in Manchuria! Over 2,000 students have been arrested for Communist activities, and the authorities are particularly concerned at the spread of Communism among the primary-school teachers. Some of the Communist leaders have recanted, others have gone over to Fascism; and the newspapers speak at times as though nothing was any longer to be feared. But it may be doubted whether the movement has really been checked.

As the Left is prepared to go to prison for its convictions, so also is the Right. The topic of the hour is the trial of those young officers who ran riot in the capital on the fifteenth of May last year, hoping to force the Army to take power and put an end to the corruption and incompetence of the politicians. Only the other day, the Finance Minister urged the parties to combine to support the Cabinet, lest the country have recourse to a dictatorship, and revert to feudalism. Japan has followed the West and learned whatever it was prepared to teach. She has tried bureaucracy, militarism, industrialism, and found these a success. She has tried democracy and is afraid it has proved a failure. Will she one day try our latest invention, Fascism?

THREE JAPANS.

There are in reality three Japans, and she cannot be understood except as we bear in mind these great divergences within her. There is the Japan which is proud, self-confident, and drum-beating. She talks of Manchuria and the South Seas as her "lifeline," and declares she will stand by them though the nation sinks in ashes, though she as to fight, as General Araki put it, with bamboo spears.

Then there is the Japan which is wistful and somewhat fearful, nursing her grievance, longing to be understood by other nations, but convinced that it is useless for a yellow people to look to a white Europe or a white League for justice, afraid of what may happen when the two years run out and she leaves the League. Will she be boycotted or will she perhaps have to face a world in arms?

Then there is the third Japan, generous in spirit and internationally-minded, longing for some other way than that of war by which to solve her problems, conscious of her kinship with and her debt to China, willing to be just towards all and the enemy of none. And if she, this third Japan, is strangely silent, may it not be because she too is doubtful and afraid, when she looks out upon the world?

"EVENING NEWS" ON FASCISM*A RECOIL AGAINST PARLIAMENTARISM

London, Aug. 16.
In a leading article on the meaning of Fascism, the Evening News comes to the following conclusions:—"Fascism is a recoil against Parliamentaryism, a revolt against speechifying, the practical consequences of the conviction that differences of opinion may serve the purpose of affording an insight into the truth but that unanimity of opinion is the only sure way of arriving at practical results without loss of time. Fascism is autocracy since it sets up an autocrat who not only rules the people but is, at the same time, the incarnation of the people's hopes, wishes, passions, prejudices and temperament. It is of no consequence whether rights were conferred upon the people by an autocrat or whether the reverse was true. The Fascist state is the complete identification of ruler and ruled, of the executive power for action and the citizens who wish to see action."

"If, after its success in Italy and America or in any other state that takes to it, Fascism proves efficacious, then we shall have to ask ourselves the question whether our own world of political parties and endless talk has any prospect of continuing to exist."—Trans-Ocean Kuo Min.

ALLEGED FRAUDPHOTOGRAPHERS' CLERK CHARGED

Leung Kit-ming, 29 years, a clerk employed by Messrs A. Sek Company, Des Voeux Road Central, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, charged with the fraudulent conversion of $451.68 worth of photographic supplies received from the Eastman Kodak Company between June 28 and July 24 last.

When asked to plead defendant said:—"It is correct but I was going to return the amount."

Magistrate—This will have to be a commitment under this section.

Mr. P. H. Sin, (for the prosecution)—Not if the defendant pleads guilty now. My instructions are not to press the charge although the charge is very serious; but in fairness to him since his arrest he has given the Police every facility in tracing the goods wrongfully obtained by him.

Mr. Wynne-Jones remarked he had no discretion in the matter. He must commit the defendant for trial. (To defendant.) "The particular section under which you have been charged makes it necessary for me to take this case for commitment."

Hearing was fixed for Thursday, August 24 at 2.30 p.m.

ACTION AGAINST HEALTH BUREAU*CLAIM OF TIS. 3,000 BY MR. T. WILKINSON

Judgment with costs was given to Mr. T. Wilkinson, the plaintiff, by acting assistant judge C. H. Haines in H. M. Supreme Court Shanghai recently. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. K. E. Newman and claimed Tis. 3,000 from the defendant, Mr. Siou Choon-leng. The total sum together with interest amounted to Tis. 3,720. The original sum had been paid by the plaintiff for bonds in the Health Service Intelligence Bureau and those bonds were now redeemable, after two years, but in spite of many attempts the plaintiff had been unable to obtain his money, it was alleged.

Before witnesses were called Mr. Newman told his Lordship that the Health Service Intelligence Bureau had agencies throughout the east, and money lent to the company for furthering the interests of the business.

The chief victims of this bureau had been men engaged in shipping on the Chinese coastal trade. Mr. Newman pointed out that at present this was the only case, but as the majority of bonds were not redeemable until five years had elapsed, he expected further complications in the future.

In the case of his client, the bonds were redeemable at the end of two years. Mr. Newman said that the case was undefended. The defendant had been notified that court proceedings were being taken against him but he had not appeared.

Mr. J. J. Dawe was then called to give evidence that the defendant had been notified. Mr. Dawe said that although he had visited the house of the defendant several times he had never found him in and eventually he left a copy of the writ at the house of July 19.

TLS. 3,000 INVESTED.

Mr. Wilkinson then stated that he first met the defendant at Hainan, when the latter had been collecting money for bonds there. He had no business transactions Shanghai when he invested Tis. 3,000 in the Health Service Intelligence Bureau. He had thought the whole business quite safe as the defendant had shown him a book containing the names of many prominent men who were subscribers. The bonds were to pay an interest of 24 per cent. per annum.

One of the bonds was produced in Court. The witness explained it was one of five. The bonds covered Shanghai, Tientsin, Manila, and Hongkong. When the money became due the holder was entitled to draw the money in any of these five places. The only interest he had ever received was on the first year, in February 1932. Even then he experienced difficulty, as a postdated cheque was given to him when he drew out the bonds, but when he sent in the cheque to the bank it was returned. However, on taking the cheque around to the office at 329 Kiangse Road, he was paid Tis. 50 in cash. For the two unredeemed cheques of March and April 1932 he was given a promissory note, and this interest was subsequently paid. Since then he had tried to obtain the money due to him on further interest but he had been unsuccessful and finally, when the bonds were due, they were repudiated.

Judgment was then given with costs for Mr. Wilkinson.

ATTACK ON THE COCKTAIL

"ABSORBING THIS POISON"

HURT APPETITE

The advice of M.A. de Curnonsky, prince of gastronomes, to those about to drink a cocktail is—don't!

The famous epicure made a passionate attack on the cocktail habit during an amusing address to members at the Salle Regamior.

The meeting was presided over by M. Leon Douarcho, Director of the Office International du Vin, and M. Escoffier, the 88-year-old veteran of the French cuisine.

"Nothing," said M. de Curnonsky, "gives me greater pain than to see a sweet young girl absorbing this cocktail poison." The most disastrous loan France ever made from America, he said, was the cocktail habit. America would never become a country of true gourmets until she abolished from her tables the "poisonous aperitifs" which spoil the appetite and drenched the palate.

Even the French traditional devotees of the art of eating were condemned by M. de Curnonsky for their fatal addition to high-powered aperitifs before meals.

"Such drinks," he added, "are industrial products—that is to say, they are not based on distillation of the grape, like wines and pure brandies. Drink nothing of the sort before eating and you will sit down to meat with a good appetite and a pure palate capable of enjoying good wine."—Reuter.

MUSSOLINI'S CONDUCT CODE

NO NIGHT CLUBS OR TOP HATS

WALK A LOT

Rome.

Night-club and top-hats are forbidden to local Fascist chiefs in a "Code of Conduct" which has been drawn up by Signor Mussolini for Federal Secretaries of the Party.

The following are the five points of the code:

- 1.—Do not frequent by day—and still less by night—so called luxury establishments, restaurants, theatres, etc.
- 2.—Go about as much as possible on foot. When you cannot, use only a utilitarian vehicle.
- 3.—At official ceremonies do not wear a top-hat. The simple black shirt is good enough.
- 4.—Do not alter your habits or mode of life in any way (as a result of your appointment).
- 5.—Keep to your office hours rigorously and listen to as many people as possible, with patience and humanity.
- 6.—Go into the working class quarters and mix with the people not only morally but physically, especially in these hard times.—Reuter.

TO SOLVE JUNGLE RIDDLE

SEARCH FOR COL. FAWCETT

New York. Four young Swedish explorers, Arne Arbin, George Morgan, Emil Anderson, and Harry Buorquist, are shortly to set out for South America to try and wrest the secret of Colonel Fawcett's disappearance from the Brazilian jungles.

Colonel H. P. Fawcett, a British explorer, accompanied by his son and Mr. Raleigh Rimell disappeared in May 1926, when exploring Central Brazil. Several expeditions have combed the jungle for them and many strange stories and legends have centred about Fawcett's name but the jungle still holds their secret.

They were last heard of eight years ago and now these four young Swedes, all under thirty years of age, are to make another effort to find the missing men.

Arne Arbin, the leader, is convinced that Fawcett is still alive. He believes the Colonel may be living somewhere near the borders of Columbia and Brazil.

Piquancy is added to his belief by the fact that Mrs. Fawcett declares she has had numerous telepathic messages from her husband, announcing that he is quite safe.

Arne Arbin is a well-known explorer. He has just returned from an expedition to Panama. While searching for Fawcett, he and his party will also try to find the grave of Vasco Nunez Balboa, the Spanish conquistador.—Reuter.

BACK TO GARDEN SLOGAN

EXPECTED TO HELP IN U.S. RELIEF WORK

URGED TO PLANT

Washington.

"No garden, no relief," is a slogan which has begun to spread among relief agencies distributing federal funds to unemployed in U.S.A.

A statement issued by the Federal Emergency Relief Administrator, said that he expected this "garden programme" to result in large contributions to relief food needs this summer and next winter. Wherever possible families are being urged to plant gardens.

The garden programmes are being followed up by food-preservation schedules. They are being carried out by cooperation between local relief agencies and the agricultural and home demonstration services.

At least one state has adopted the "no garden, no relief" slogan, he said.

"The benefits of this immense amount of subsistence gardening are manifold," said the administrator. "Besides the actual reduction in the cost of caring for these gardening families that have made themselves at least partly self-sustaining, there are health benefits."

"The work of gardening is healthful and the fruits of their labour give them a better balanced diet. That cuts out a lot of medical bills. This aspect is especially important in areas where pellagra has required the giving of yeast and cod-liver oil."

"Besides the gardens raised by persons on relief rolls, many families that might otherwise be dependent are getting a large part of their emergency living out of the soil. Communities have provided for acreages divided into individual plots. Industries have plowed up idle land around factories and helped their part-time or laid off employees with seed and instruction. The whole movement is resulting in real benefits on a large scale."

Relief agencies in many cities have arranged for large plots in the suburbs.—Reuter.

BRIGHTER CRICKET MOVEMENT MATERIALISES

SOME MORE AMAZING SCORES

COUNTY MATCHES PRODUCE OVER 7,000 RUNS

DOUBLE CENTURIES FOR HAMMOND AND JOHN LANGRIDGE

PARKER'S FINE BOWLING

London, Aug. 18.

That "Brighter Cricket" movement, for which the critics have been appealing during the last two or three years has come nearer to realisation during 1933 than in any other post-war season.

Last week half a dozen matches produced over 6,000 runs. The latest batch of county cricket matches has seen 7,450 runs scored.

The seven games which concluded to-day enjoyed several distinctive features.

Chief among them was that Yorkshire, by beating Nottingham, assured themselves of the championship for the eighth time in fourteen years.

Another remarkable feature was that of the eight county games played during the latter part of this week, which produced an average of 931 runs per match, six of them finished with definite results.

Of the two left drawn—Hants v. Leicestershire and Lancashire v. Worcester—the first produced over 800 runs and the second over 1,000.

14 CENTURIES.

Centuries were cheap. Including the Kent v. Northants match in which three centuries were scored, the total number of three-figure innings during the last three days was fourteen. Among them were double centuries by John Langridge (250 not out) and Hammond (231).

In addition five batsmen reached the 90 mark.

In view of this bowlers had to take a back seat. Nevertheless seven trundlers in county matches enjoyed successes, whilst Martindale for the West Indies, and MacDonald and Richardson for Sir Lindsay Parkinson's eleven, enjoyed achievements.

In three games the follow-on was enforced and in only one was its penalty avoided. Leicestershire followed on against Hampshire managed to play out time, but Derby against Gloucestershire and Glamorgan against Sussex were not so fortunate and were beaten by an innings.

BRILLIANT RECOVERY.

Worcester made a brilliant recovery against Lancashire. In arrears to the extent of 347 on the first innings, they completely subdued the Lancashire attack in their return visit to the crease scoring 355 for 4 before the close of play. Batsmen had a field day in the Yorkshire v. Nottingham match. Three of them recorded centuries and Sutcliffe and Carr missed their's by four and three runs respectively. Even so Yorkshire won brilliantly.

Hammond, who scored his third double century of the season, is now within striking distance of setting a new aggregate of three figure innings for a season. The record is held by J. B. Hobbs, who in 1925 scored 16 such innings. Hammond this summer has so far scored ten.

Charlie Parker's bowling was the deciding factor in Gloucestershire's defeat of Derby. The veteran trundler took 11 wickets for 177 during the match.

Tate made possible the Sussex victory, when in Glamorgan's second innings he captured 5 for 35.

SEQUEL TO AN INCIDENT AT CATHEDRAL

Pte. Joseph Patrick Hilley of the South Wales Borderers, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones yesterday afternoon accused of assaulting the No. 1 coolie at St. John's Cathedral. He pleaded not guilty.

Chinese Constable C.404, said he heard whistles blown and on arrival at the scene, he turned on his torch and saw a soldier sitting on the pathway running his hand through his hair. On getting up to his feet, he took the torch from witness and searched for his hat which he found in the complainant's cubicle. Complainant asked witness to arrest Hilley who was the soldier who was seated.

Indian constable B.731 who was on post duty said he was attracted by police whistles. He saw the defendant standing in the compound with a broom. He saw no assault in the barracks compound. Defendant refused to be arrested.

Private W. A. Jones, of the South Wales Borderers, said on the night in question, he arranged to meet a Chinese girl at the bottom of Garden Road. They went for a little walk up Garden Road and on reaching the Cathedral were told to move away by a Chinese man, who spoke English. He wished her "good-night" and she walked downhill and he walked towards the barracks. When he was about fifteen yards away, the girl was attacked by four men. He called to Hilley for assistance to arrest one of the men for assaulting her.

Hilley was on military Police duty at the south-east gate of Murray Barracks. In the Cathedral compound, witness and Hilley were attacked by ten or twelve men armed with bamboo broom handles. Hilley tried to take hold of one of the men with the intention of handing him over to the Civil Police, when he was struck. Neither witness nor Hilley entered the coolie's quarters. Witness had known the girl for eighteen months and this was the first occasion they had trouble.

Defendant, on oath, said that while struggling with one of the Chinese he was struck by a pole. He tried to explain to the Chinese and Indian constables but on hearing the complainant's story they were bent on arresting him. Defendant stated—"I did not want to be arrested as it meant taking me away from my duty. Seeing that the Police were bent on arresting me I walked across Garden Road, and then ran back to barracks, where I reported the matter to the N. C. O. on duty."

Magistrate—"I don't know what to make of it all. They are both lying to me. Defendant is lying badly, so is Private Jones, and the complainant and his witness." (To defendant) "You are lying to cover your leaving your post. You must not think that because you are a regimental policeman you have a free right to arrest. You may go."

Turning to the complainant, Mr. Wynne-Jones said—"If you go and shoot people out of a public path without any solid reason you are bound to get into trouble. I am quite aware that there are rather unsavoury practices carried on and, no doubt, it is your duty to try and prevent it. And don't forget that when you take action in Court you must tell me the truth. You may go."

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Una O'Connor, screen character actress under contract to Fox, who is making a sensational hit as Ellen Bridges in the Fox production of Neel Coward's "Cavalcade", has the role of Mrs. Signus in "Pleasure Cruise", coming next Sunday to the King's Theatre.

Practically every available character actress in Hollywood was tested for this important part, including Miss O'Connor. But she was preparing for her role in Lillian Harvey's first Fox picture, "My Lips Betray", and studio executives did not deem it wise to cast her in two pictures starting so closely together.

But test after test proved unsatisfactory, and so it was only after rearranging the shooting schedules of "Pleasure Cruise" and the Lillian Harvey production, that Frank Tuttle was able to get this talented actress for the "Mrs. Signus" characterization.

"Pleasure Cruise", with the screen play by Guy Bolton from the stage success written by Austen Allen, features Roland Young, Genevieve Tobin, Ralph Forbes, Minna Gombell and Herbert Mundin.

"Today We Live"

"Trio" of men or women have brought success to many a talking and silent picture. Who will forget Douglas Fairbanks and "The Three Musketeers"? Memory of Gilbert, Dane and O'Brien in "The Big Parade" will always remain fresh in the minds of filmgoers. The trio of men in "Beau Geste" is unforgettable. The same is true of the three girls in "The Greeks Had a Word for Them."

The latest trio to pop up in pictures comprises Gary Cooper, Robert Young and Franchot Tone, who are seen with Joan Crawford in "Today We Live" which is now at the Queen's Theatre. It is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture directed by Howard Hawks from an original story by William Faulkner, author of "Light in August" and "Sanctuary."

Cooper and Young are seen as Miss Crawford's lovers, with Tone playing the part of her brother. All three play a part in the World War, Cooper as an American Aviator, Young and Tone in the operation of two-man torpedo boats, the most dangerous branch of the British navy. Miss Crawford comes to love Cooper and then is told that he is dead. His unexpected return after the heroism has given herself to another man provides the nucleus of this romance "behind the lines."

"Today We Live" is the first war romance in which Joan Crawford has been seen on the screen.

Cooper, on the other hand, has played innumerable soldiers, his last war role being in "A Farewell to Arms." Others in the cast of "Today We Live" include Roscoe Karns, Louise Dresser Hale, Rollo Lloyd and Hilda Vaughn.

"A Woman Commands"

Long before "A Woman Commands" had unfolded its story, it was apparent that Pola Negri had returned to claim the throne she voluntarily vacated three years ago as one of the outstanding personalities of the screen.

The raven-haired star has lost nothing and gained much during her retirement. Never has she been as fiery, as beautiful, or magnetic, as she is now.

It would seem that Pola has also solved the secret of being slender without any hint of emaciation. She is slim as a sylph, and at the same time as beautifully rounded as the favourite of a Sultan's dream.

Wisdom was demonstrated by the producers in the selection of her first story. Inspired by the tempestuous life of the assassinated Queen Draga of Serbia, a daughter of the people who rose to the throne by virtue of charm and beauty that fascinated a king, Pola Negri herself might be the reincarnation of the character. In the portrayal there is complete understanding of Draga, in all her brilliance, beauty and ambitious intrigue.

Those who entertained any fears that Negri's recent might interfere with her success in talking picture must prepare to discover their error. Miss Negri has a pliant accent which however does not detract from her perfect command of English. In fact it adds a distinctive note to her personality.

"Smoke Lightning"

While the days of the open range and the two-gun killers passed out with the turn of the century, almost there is just as much excitement and adventure in the cattle country today. To find it you must go far from the beaten paths, deep into the range country.

Just to prove the truth of the above assertion, George O'Brien in the modern West can be a thrilling one in "Smoke Lightning", his new Fox Film vehicle, which is to open today at the King's Theatre. Bristling with gunfights, a jail-break, a poker game that ruins one of the players, and some of the most brilliant riding ever shown on the screen, this picture is scheduled to dispel any idea that the West of today is tranquil.

Taken from the Zane Grey novel, "Canyon Walls" the story deals with the hectic experiences of a roving cowboy and his pal who decide to appoint themselves guardians of a little girl after the death of her father leaves her a wealthy orphan. The appointment does not meet with the wishes of the sheriff, who covets the girl's ranch.

to my service. I have, therefore, fixed your punishment at exile. Who else was implicated in this?"

As Paul looked somewhat puzzled, the Tsar turned to the waiting General.

"Leave us, General."

He left with a salute. As the door closed behind him, the Tsar dropped everything and seized both of Paul's hands in his own. The Tsaritsa and Aloysha came up breathlessly.

"Paul!"

"This is how we reward your patriotism," the Tsaritsa said sadly.

"It had to be done, Paul," the Tsar explained. "All Rasputin's creatures are still in power."

"Where will you go, Paul?" the Tsaritsa asked.

"England. I've been offered a commission, in the line."

"Take Natasha with you," the Tsaritsa said.

"Majesty, you'll need her more than ever now," Paul told the Empress.

"She deserves to be happy. Do what you're told."

"Your Majesty—I wish I could put in words—your goodness—"

"Paul began.

"Take care of her, Paul," the Tsar said.

"I shall," Paul answered.

"Your Majesty," Paul said, suddenly impulsively. "I never believed that madman before—but one thing he said is roaring in my brain—that when he died, Russia dies—Already revolution is in the air—and never like it has been before. This time it's the end of everything. Leave while you have a chance! Save yourselves!"

"Save yourselves!" Has Paul reason for his fears? Will the murdered monarch's prophecy bear bloody fruit? Read to-morrow's, the final, instalment of this story. (To Be Continued) the wishes of the sheriff, who covets the girl's ranch. O'Brien is supporting in this western romance by Nell O'Day, an exceptionally attractive blonde; Betty King Rosa nine year-old dare devil rider and Frank Atkinson, one of the most humorous portrayers of cowboy roles who have been seen in many a day.

BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Too many people to-day are trying to play contract bridge with auction bidding.The theory in auction was that you opened weak first or second hand because you were bidding against your opponents, but in contract you bid for your partner.
When you make an original bid you are laying the foundation upon which game or slam is to be built.If your foundation is not strong, the castle that you and your partner attempt to build on this air is almost certain to crash.We open weak third hand bids for two reasons—first, to try to confuse the opponents, and second, to protect partner. Even a fourth hand bid may be made if you are certain that you have enough strength to prevent the opponents from making game in a major suit.Here is another mistake I have seen a lot of players make—partner makes an original bid, let us say a first or second hand bid,
one that shows plenty of strength, and they hold the big hand. Theynow start bidding that hand blindly.Remember that when you hold a big hand after your partner has made an original bid, undoubtedly all that he has is an absolute minimum, and therefore you should guide your bidding accordingly.I thought the following hand, which was played at Hanover, N.
H., in the recent American Whist League tournament, was cleverly bid by North and South.The BiddingSouth opened the contracting with one heart. West made a negative double. North had a big hand and I presume the average player would immediately bid.
However, in this case, North made a very fine pass.Without a doubt East is going to respond with a spade bid, which is going to give North an opportunity to make a splendid cue bid. East bid one spade, South bid two hearts and West bid two spades.North now knew that there were no losing hearts and his only fear in the hand was that partner held three small clubs and the king, queen and one diamond, in which case a club might be lost.North now made a bid of three spades which East passed. South bid four hearts. North then bid five diamonds to show his ace of diamonds and South went to six hearts.This was all the information that North needed. With that type of bidding South could not hold three small clubs, therefore North went to seven hearts, which,
of course, is a lay-down.None

ALLEGED FALSE PRETENCES

EUROPEAN AGAIN REMANDED

Charged with obtaining $45 from the Concrete Products, Ltd., by false pretences, by purporting to have carried out repairs to a junk belonging to the complainant firm, Lewis Edurin Sotherton Hodge, 44, manager of the Union Transport Company, made his second appearance, on bail, before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Det. Inspector Murphy, for the prosecution, said that Mr. Henry Graye, manager of the Concrete Products was expected back from Shanghai on August 30. He asked for a further remand.

Mr. M. A. da Silva, for the defence, said he would like an order for inspection of documents. There was a question of civil rights involved in the matter. The particular document he wanted was either a mortgage or bill of sale for the junk.

Mr. Wynne-Jones remarked he would not give a general order for inspection.

Mr. Silva—I shall endeavour to show, and I hope successfully to prove, that it is a civil right that is the issue of this case.

Mr. Wynne-Jones stated he would like to know how the civil rights came in and precisely what document or documents counsel wanted to inspect. He would see Mr. Silva in chambers during the week.

Another remand for seven days was granted.
